By the end of the twentieth century, the status of a language of World importance in English was finally consolidated. TODAY, foreign language skills are becoming an integral part of professional education. Due to the high index of cooperation with foreign partners in specialists in various fields, the demand for language learning is high in them. In modern society, foreign languages are becoming an important component of professional education. Such knowledge is learned by people, first in schools, colleges, lyceums, later in institutes, educational courses or independently, familiarizing themselves with the main sets of information that help to learn a foreign language.

In the course of the study, popular methods of teaching and learning English, Internet resources, were used. During the writing of the article, the principles of theoretical inference, analysis and synthesis, logic were used.

Language is the main means of communication, without which it is difficult to imagine the existence and development of human society. In a circle of great changes in social relations in our world today, Communication Media (Information Technology) requires improving the communicative skills of students, which in the process of interacting with other participants in communication must exchange ideas in different situations, correctly use the norms of language and speech. In such conditions, the main goal of a foreign language is the formation of communicative abilities, that is, the implementation of interpersonal and intercultural communication in a foreign language is required. By the end of the twentieth century, the status of a language of World importance in English was finally consolidated. In most schools around the world, its study became mandatory, and the teaching methodology began to develop with leaps and bounds. Not everyone has the opportunity to take courses that are the reason for the emergence of the first way to learn English independently. Later, many authors tried to independently create an effective English language learning program, but we will focus on the 4 most popular ones.

1. Schechter method

This method of learning English is based not on the classical model "from theory to practice", but on an inverse, more natural system of perception. It is very similar to how we learn our native language. The author gives an example of how young children learn to speak - after all, no one explains to them the rules for constructing sentences, cases and parts of speech. In the same way, Igor Yuryevich Shekhter offers to learn English. The essence of the modern method of learning English is that from the first lesson, students are assigned a certain task, for example, to study the profession of the interlocutor. In addition, all students play what are called "Etudes", where they act in different roles and try to solve the problem. Since communication occurs between people with approximately the same level of language proficiency, the fear of using foreign speech that appears in communication between a teacher and a student disappears. This technique of the English language consists of three stages: in the first, lexical units, words and phrases are given, and only then, in the second and third stage, the use of grammatical and syntactic structures is corrected. The system has repeatedly confirmed its effectiveness and is currently one of the most successful from the point of view of pedagogical psychologists.

2. Pimsler method

Dr. Paul Pimsler developed a special system of thirty-minute lessons designed not only for the perception of information, but also for its reproduction. Each lesson is told by two people: our compatriot and native English-speaking. Thanks to this, as well as special memorization technology, each student learns hundreds of words and phrases in English for each lesson. The essence of the lesson is to carry out the tasks that are told by the speakers in series. The undoubted advantages of the technique include its mobility - you can perform audio tasks anywhere: while standing in a traffic jam, on the way to work, on the subway on the way to a meeting or lying in bed before bed. The downside will be the lack of a high-quality pronunciation and knowledge acquisition test.

3. Dragunkin method

A distinctive feature of the Alexander Nikolaevich Dragunkin system is the orientation towards the native Russian language in the study of any foreign language. The author, who very boldly calls English simple, notes that its roots go back to the old Russian language, especially the system of grammatical tense.

Students of the Dragunkin course learn new words transcribed in Russian letters, and grammatical constructions are divided not into 12 tenses known to us from school, but into Past, Present, Future and their transformations. Alexander Nikolaevich has his own network of schools, in which you can master three types of courses: basic, short and conversational. A Little Leap into English, an innovative approach to language learning by a linguist, is proposed for Independent Education. Using its system, you can easily understand the use of verbs in English, memorize the rules for using articles and easily master the basic principles of constructing sentences. Nevertheless, the Dragunkin method has many negative reviews, which criticize pronunciation and insufficient theoretical knowledge.

4. Petrov method

Dmitry Petrov said that you can learn English in 16 hours. True, the author once again finds out that we are not talking about mastering the language at the level of a citizen born in Great Britain, but about basic knowledge. His lessons are enough to survive in conditions of falling into an English-speaking environment, explain your needs and understand the answer.

In conclusion, it should be said that the teaching of the modern language is aimed at the formation of a more civilized personality, as long as it has the skills of self-analysis and systematization of new knowledge. Innovative methods are an integral part of the modernization of the entire system. With confidence, teachers can get acquainted with the most advanced approaches and subsequently combine them and achieve significant growth in the educational system using their work. Many organizations are moving to a new level using multimedia capabilities to send and receive information. The use of computers and other devices determines the success of the entire educational process. Adequate attention should be paid to the formation of speech skills and the development of social flexibility in trainings carried out in the educational process. In addition, the success of each lesson in education largely depends on the correct Organization of training. The lesson should be based on the creative cooperation of the teacher and the student. Only then can students think independently freely, their will is brought up.

1. Learning grammar will not be easy to break of course. When we do not want to, the most complex part in the study of the language is precisely grammar. We observe a lot that in the study of most grammars, the rule falls on memorization. Memorizing rules does not mean learning grammar. Unfortunately, such people are the majority. They know by heart the rules in the grammar and phonetics of a foreign language, but they cannot compose a more innocently complex sentence in the language. Throw out of your brain at all what the rule is to memorize. You do not memorize all the rules only, say the most used ones. As soon as you memorize the rules all, you only make them 30%. You will not use the rest. This can lead to a variety of boredom and confusion in you. Repeat what you have learned every day and make more complex sentences for them later than simpler to begin with. In a simple sentence, basically, English is made up of + Section + complement.

2. Memorize dictionary. Even in this process, memorizing yourself words for years is the wrong method. I used to memorize 10 words a day. The attitude is that I could not use these when I spoke English, I practically did not use such words. This was to no avail. We have concepts about this such as "Active vocabulary" and "Passive vocabulary". If we conclude, you can use the words in "active vocabulary" without any treatment. You can use them without various difficulties. But if he fell into the words "passive vocabulary", then you can remember that word only by impulse, if you briefly say to see or hear. Words in the Passive vocabulary part are considered very dangerous. Because there is a chance that these words will disappear from absolute oblivion. To do this, we will save the words in the "Active vocabulary" section and transfer the words in "passive vocabulary" to "active vocabulary". To do this, it will help much more if we see English cinema. We need to translate all the unfamiliar vocabulary on our seen movie or video rollers and give them a good emphasis on their pronunciation. Then both our vocabulary and our pronunciation will grow.

3. Pronunciation. Each language has its own pronunciation. Nowadays, the development of technology has developed. For this reason, we all have access to media. We greatly increase our pronunciation when we hear different English movies and English songs. Another way is when you hear a song in a foreign language, you can also use it for another purpose. Find the text of your favorite song in a foreign language and translate it into your own language using a dictionary. Or work a lot with English texts so that you can translate by marking words that are unfamiliar to you. Then translate from English to your own language, despite the translation of unfamiliar words that you have closed that text. Then you will remember and you will know at what time to use them another useful way is to listen to the speech of people whose native language is English and be in conversation with them. Nowadays, we all have the opportunity to get in touch online. That is, we can take advantage of this to "get a variety of information by talking to Native speakers in order to increase our pronunciation by interacting freely. I would like to give some more masks so that we can learn English quickly and efficiently.

1. To clearly define the goal. If you have any work, especially in language learning, not to succeed. Therefore, reflect on what you want to learn English yourself. Nowadays, most people go to learn a language without interest in the opinion of the household or others. First of all, you should have an interest and purpose in yourself. For example, by studying English, I will be the first grant to the universet of world languages, I will enroll in the universet of Vesminster on a grand basis, or I will go to study abroad and work in high positions, and again I will "open new campaigns in cooperation with foreign countries." Remember, the more serious the goal, the faster and more effective language learning will be.

2. The basis of the language is repetition. Language cannot be learned without constant repetition. You can memorize 15 new words a day. but it is natural that these words will come out of your mind if you do not repeat them after

2-3kun. To do this, you can effectively use the areas where your eyes fall the most. Personally, I attach my newly learned words to a small piece of paper or various stacks to the door of my room and to the table where I teach .

3. Communicate. Language is a means of communication . We all know that communication plays an important role in the organization of language. Go to Speaking clubs in training centers or resource centers. Never be ashamed to speak even if you can't speak fluently yet. A person who is ashamed to participate in conversations is won over by someone who tries to speak, even if he does not yet know the language more correctly. Never be ashamed to speak in general , keep talking even if you have mistakes. Or you find yourself a partner for constant exercise. Another useful aspect of this is that this method creates a specific competitive environment among partners. For example, you also try to memorize so as not to lag behind your partner.

4. Adjust the language learning process to your daily life. Adjust everything to your daily life when learning the language. For example if you take a bus to an institute or school every day, at least 30-35 minutes of your time will go away. You make the most of this time .You can listen to exercises or audios to develop a variety of Listening comprehension.

5. Use your smartphone correctly and efficiently you need to apply easy methods to learn quickly in the language learning process . Your smartphone will help you with this. You can use them by downloading free English language learning apps without attending paid courses using your smartphone. You can also see different English movies with subtitles. Learning English Riley is not easy. In doing so, it will require you to set a specific goal that you set for you, to constantly repeat new words, communicate without embarrassment when there is an opportunity , adapt the process of learning the inliz language to your life and, finally, use technology effectively. Conclusion:in this article, I tried to find and teach learners who have difficulty learning English quickly and efficiently. I hope this article will be useful for learners who have difficulty learning English quickly.
